One commonly hears inspired experts in the industries of design, art and fashion discuss how intertwined the pursuits can be. For Rebecca Salcito, this truth proved a guiding force in her path to becoming the Principal of Salcito Design Group. “I studied art in Paris, and that was where I realized that I would work in the design industry one way or another,” she shares. “I also love fashion and travel, and those passions remain today, serving as influences. My design work is inspired by Parisian and other European styles.” Known for the elevated interior architecture and design it offers to the luxury home space, SDG boasts a portfolio of projects that are impeccably finished, functional, exceed the client’s wildest expectations and blend the old with the new in an effervescent way. Combining inspired influences with the client’s wish list, Salcito and her team achieve design mastery on every project.

Paramount Projects

Salcito shares the details on two endeavors that best represent the firm.

- “One of my LUXE-featured homes, which the magazine described as ‘European glamour meets desert contemporary,’ truly exemplifies my style. It was set on an amazing site in Scottsdale, offering breathtaking mountain and city vistas. The clients were wonderful to work with and trusted the vision.”
- “My own home perfectly showcases my affinity for a soft white European plaster backdrop, layered with modern furniture, soft textures, Austrian crystal chandeliers and collected artwork.”

Industry Inspo

Asked to talk about her greatest inspirations, Salcito says, “Holly Hunt and Rosemary Hallgarten both have a passion for quality and amazing design. Their lines are always elegant and sophisticated.” Salcito also shares four of her favorite Instagram accounts to follow as of late: @udesignmarbella, @paris.explore, @ruemonsieurparis and @jeffleatham.

Drapery panels by Rosemary Hallgarten and a Salcito-designed hide rug from Kyle Bunting complete the look. Far right The formal bar, centrally located and adjacent to both the living and dining room, is equipped to serve large parties or small intimate dinners.
